Ladies and Gentlemen,*

.....speech intro of Mrs. (Misses) Felber maybe about the evening and the book of Melinda Gates “The Moment of Lift: How Empowering Women Changes the World” (maybe to read-present some sentence from the book) and then as follow.....(And then....)

Tonight, I have the honor to introduce to you a very special guest; who will speak to us about an important topic in connection to our Evening-Book of Melinda Gates; “The Moment of Lift: How Empowering Women Changes the World”. I am very happy to say that we are will be the first to hear Him publicly.

Until recently he hasn't been on public stages and likes to be modestly present in the background – some know him, others already heard of him, some not yet. As a committed young entrepreneur, he has been involved with his business partners in various start-ups and projects. He has also served on various boards and provided supervisory services to consult and motivate. Unfortunately, due to an unexpected surgical intervention, he had to take a backseat to focus on his health for a while but glad to say that he is now active among us. Needless to say, it is admirable how he understands and positions himself geopolitically and how his travels enriched him culturally through the diverse network he established at the political, nobility, industrial, and economic levels. This has empowered him to form his delegation and team members from different cultural circles, which allowed him to motivate and inspire his fellow human beings through his commitment and actions. He believes that we rise by lifting others. He is regarded as a very kind, conscientious leader and has mastered handling humanitarian situations by exercising compassion and prioritizing human values. This empowered him to neutrally assess and handle national and global challenges, as well as develop preventive and innovative solutions for the benefit of humanity.

His commitment and follow up reflects his professional work ethics. This allowed him to be one of the most promising leaders of the younger generation and was officially elected in 2017 as the youngest president of a global complex public office. He advocated the complex expansion and implementation of the new global structure, as well as implemented parts of the original structure set in 1931, the newly established supranational-intergovernmental organization and the organizationally coherent international non-profit foundation, with the permanent mission “to the Safety of Nations and their people”, which is governmental, exclusive and international related to Member States and Partners, but act independently neutral. One of his long-standing concerns include women empowerment with the support of Men Voices, in order to support together the mission to save, rescue and empower lives. He has been instrumental in setting up the Global Women Association in 2018. The whole structure was established with his delegation, in only two and a half years, as compared to other supranational-intergovernmental structures that took more than 8 years to build.

Ladies and gentlemen, please join me in welcoming the President of the global Office, H.E. F. Houmard,

(Now Speech of the President of the global Office, H.E. F. Houmard)

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Good Evening. Tonight, and on this occasion, I would like to especially welcome our wives, girlfriends, mothers, sisters, grandmothers, and daughters as well as all women of the world. Initially, I would like to thank all those who supported me during my rehabilitation from injuries that I sustained. However, this did not affect my resolve to play a proactive role in light of my official election to lead and integrate the new supranational-intergovernmental global organization which includes the international non-profit foundation and the global women association, as well as the wonderful theme of empowerment, together with Women voices which is the subject of today’s occasion “The International Women’s day” as an important focal point of movements for women’s rights

From my perspective, women represent a symbol of cordiality, harmony, beauty, love, security, and inspiration. They are unique priceless sparkling diamonds. Many surveys show that women are more transparent and persistent to succeed in their family as well as professional lives. They represent more than half of our societies and are a symbol of peace and humanity across the world. Accordingly, women must have equality in every aspect in order to further empower them to become change agents in our societies so that we have a better world.

As Mrs. (Misses) Felber already mentioned, I will present to you our global newly structure of the permanent mission and what we do - “OUR ULTIMATE GOAL IS TO PROTECT THE POPULATION - TO SAVE, RESCUE AND EMPOWER LIVES, WITH INNOVATIVE, MORE EFFICIENT, POWERFUL SUSTAINABLE FOOTPRINTS” - “WHEN WE OVERCOME, TOGETHER AS ONE - PROTECT AND HELP EACH OTHER - THE WORLD WILL KNOW PEACE AND JOY - SO EVERYONE WILL LIVE WITH DIGNITY” - with my delegation I represent the recently established global supranational-intergovernmental organization called THE GLOBAL UNION • GU’s GHCF (THE GU • GU-GHCF) which organizationally include the GU’s GLOBAL HOUMARD & CO. FOUNDATION, with the permanent mission dedicated to the global Safety of Nations and their People - (as an honor of my acceptance of my official election, one of my family names, was included in the name of the international GU’s non-profit foundation). It was founded to unite the nations of the globe under its global leadership – to facilitate new, innovative structures, recommendations and directives in the administrative, organizational, operational and financial areas of different state and public sectors. The ultimate goal is to protect the population, with the aim of strengthening foreign and public affairs, including civil defense, the protection and security of populations, property and the environment, humanitarian aid, education, innovation, human rights, peace and ethics, on the state level, as well as supporting institutions and companies as related to their mission or services, with both preventive and curative measures, all of which are very important tasks in current state of affairs across the globe. It reviews project and business proposals from the Member States, Partners and other institutions, as well as companies and private individuals – in an effort to utilize financial support to fulfill an effective purpose. Accordingly, 99% of donations and subsidies of private individuals, institutional, agency members and/or member states, go directly to impactful projects with minimal administration-related expenses. Furthermore, to implement this rule, I designed a new innovative fund structure which is still work in progress to cover future administration expenses separately.

Recently, in August 2018, we also welcomed the signing of GU's GLOBAL WOMEN ASSOCIATION (MDGWAPEA) which includes the GU's GLOBAL AWARD & CERTIFICATES, and reports directly to my office. It has been personally designed by myself and supported by my Delegation, to empower women around the globe. It has been designed to promote equality, support women in leadership positions, their political participation, their economic self-reliance, ending violence and crime against girls and women, women's participation in all peace-making events, protection, rescue as well as security and humanitarian activities.

THE GLOBAL UNION • GU-GHCF and GU's GLOBAL HOUMARD & CO. FOUNDATION was established by Order of the ICDO and Members. However, it acts independently at the international level, in an supranational-intergovernmental and neutral manner and is officially registered at the Swiss Federal Department for international Foundations and Organizations.

Over the past few decades, the frequency of disasters has been increasing with a rise in natural disasters as well as conflicts, criminal activities and wars resulting in millions of victims of death and displacement. This is pushing millions of people as well as many women and girls into poverty and/or psychological isolation every year. With innovation, education, safety and empowerment, our joint work, we will together generate impactful projects in an effort to improve the lives of the people of different States, including refugees around the world. This will also include protocols that will assist as preventive measures in reducing negative impacts on the population and on refugees. This may include projects to provide professional continuing education courses and certificates to improve the lives of refugees by improving their chances of finding jobs that will sustain them and their families.

On this occasion of "The international Women's right day" we reiterate our support for their empowerment. This movement was initiated by the Socialist Party of America when they organized "Women's Day" on February 28, 1909 in New York. Later, the 1910 International Socialist Women Conference suggested a Women's Day to be held annually. Furthermore, in light of women's struggle in Soviet Russia in 1917, March 8th became a national holiday which was predominantly celebrated by the socialist movement and communist countries until it was adopted in 1975 by the United Nations.

This day also reflects the meaning of Civil awareness day, Women and girl's day, Anti-sexism day, Anti-Discrimination Day and is related to the international Children's day, Russian revolution and international Worker's day.

Today International Women's Day is recognized in several countries as a public holiday and largely ignored elsewhere. Sadly, in some places it is still a day of protest and suffering; in others; it is a day that celebrate womanhood – you'll agree with me that it would be wonderful when it would be everywhere a day of empowerment together with women voices, freedom, happiness and celebration.

Today, many countries and companies follow and empower women. However, this process in other countries still take too long to provide the needed results. Unfortunately, when we look around the world there is still much to be desired and a lot to be achieved in order to bridge equality in empowerment and I look forward to the day when all women and girls across the world automatically receive their rights to vote, to hold public offices, to acquire land, to be free without the need to protest against employment sex discrimination, to reach economic self-reliance, to walk through any street without anxiety, to participate in peace-making, humanitarian action, as well as their children and families.

However, we cannot wait for that this day to happen. We need to make it happen. We need to play a proactive role for all Women together with Men Voices so that we overcome as one and implement the impacts to save, rescue and empower lives.

Ladies and Gentlemen in relation to the theme “Empowerment” and the Evening-Book of this event, it is inspiring to see, in The Moment of Lift, when Mrs. (Misses) Gates traces her awakening to the link between women’s empowerment and the health of societies. She shows some of the tremendous opportunities that exist right now to 'turbo-charge' change. She also provides simple and effective ways which each one of us can use to make a difference. Yes, I agree with the statements of Melinda Gates as well with similar statements of other personalities, that if all the stronger ones stand up for the weaker ones, we can promote mutual empowerment. This will be a key to reduce loneliness, criminality and poverty - and to allow each individuals to feel that they are something more than a number, but rather have the freedom and value. This begins at home, and in our educational system as well as in the daily business.

The word “empowerment” also triggers “motivation”, and together it is binding and powerful. Yes, to lift up and not to give up – yes, we have the motivation to maintain equal rights for women, without ifs and buts! – I personally find it very enriching when women are given the same career opportunity similar to men resulting in the same model of salary and recognition – yes through empowerment on her own, also because of her qualities, her abilities to reach the level where she finds herself and feels content.

In light of the limited time I have, I will not enumerate the many examples and benefits to societies in ensuring equality for women. Instead, I will simply say that achieving this equality will enable us to live in a world to save, rescue and empower lives. It is a source of pride and joy to affirm that our supranational-intergovernmental global organization and foundation, including the global women association, will implement projects that will empower women across the globe. Our motto in this respect will be “Empowerment together with Women Voices”

(Now Speech and intro for MDGWAEPA Co-Chairwomen Ms. N. de Jong)

I now give the floor to Miss de Jong, the Co-Chairwomen of the GU’s Global Women Association, but unfortunately this evening she can’t be with us, and she gave me the permission to represent her in order to share with you her Words;

Women are our grandmothers, mothers, our sisters, our colleagues, our friends, our wives and our daughters. Women are proven agents of change. Even Earth is called Mother Nature. They contribute to the health, safety and productivity of their families, communities and countries, creating a ripple effect that benefits everyone. Empowered women use their voices to speak up for themselves, and more importantly, for others who cannot.

We live in a world that values the rational mind and are taught that you are either male or female. Society has separated the two for thousands of years. In the past, and even today, women do not have the same opportunities as men, are seen as too emotional, less intelligent or are encouraged to stay at home. Women have been fighting for their rights and equality for decades and decades.

But humanity is at a turning point. At this International Women’s day, it’s about Balance. How do we achieve gender balance? We must find harmony within ourselves before we can expect to see it anywhere else. It is not about gender, male or female, race or religion. It requires us raise our level of consciousness to understand that we are all connected to all living beings on earth. We all have masculine and feminine energy. If we want to create a brighter future for generations to come, we need to balance these energies within ourselves.

At GU • GU-GHCF - GU's Global Women Association we are focusing on creating change in humanity towards inclusivity and equality, regardless of gender. On this International Women's Day, let's embrace the feminine in all of us, knowing that this will ensure the empowerment of women and ultimately of everyone.

So Ladies, let's stop trying to be female versions of men. Let's bring back the feminine power in all of us. Feminine power can still be fierce, but fierce with purpose. Being caring, nurturing and intuitive, more about the whole than the self, using power for the greater good and not just over others. Being affectioned, compassionate, patience and lead with our hearts. After all, these are the feminine strengths that will heal our planet.

Masculinity is beautiful. Femininity is beautiful. A balanced world as "together with Women Voices and Man Voices" is a better world Thank you very much, dear Natasha for your commitment to stay in with us, your supporting sentences of this very important topic of today. I send you my sincere greetings in the occasion of international women's day.

Going back to today's March 8th event, I notice the endless loop of the number 8, which correlates to our endless efforts to succeed in realizing the rights of women to create a better more just world for all of us.

I encourage everyone, whether here among us, or out there across the globe, to address this goal and motivate each other to achieve this noble cause through empowerment together with voices from Women and Men.

Finally, I say WE RISE BY LIFTING OTHERS. With this in mind, I would like to thank you sincerely for this evening. I look forward to toasting this day and give the floor back to Mrs. (Misses) Felber
